

Headcorn Primary School, E-Safety Charter

Headcorn School believes that online safety is an essential element of safeguarding children in the digital world. We wish to encourage the safe use of relevant technologies both in and outside of school.

We aim to educate pupils to become upstanding digital citizens, whom have the knowledge to deal with and respond appropriately to, situations that they may encounter online.

The staff at Headcorn School will endeavour to do this by...

- embedding online safety education in the curriculum whenever possible,
- having an up to date awareness of online safety issues and how they relate to children,
- modelling good practice when using technology,
- maintaining a professional level of conduct in their personal use of technology,

The pupils of Headcorn School will try to do this by...

- using the internet in a safe and responsible way,
- respecting the feelings and rights of other people online,
- talking to a trusted adult should they have a problem while online,
- demonstrate good e-safety to others in the way they act online

The parents and carers of the wider school community will make an effort to do this by...

- talking about e-safety with their children,
- reinforcing and reflecting the school's approaches to good online behaviour,
- modelling safe and responsible use of technology themselves,
- being aware of changes in their children's behaviour, which could indicate a problem,
- seeking help from the school or other agencies if they encounter problems online
